

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method of characterizing the transfer of an analyte from a non-aqueous liquid composition to an aqueous medium and in particular to an in vitro method for measuring the dissolution of a drug from a
5 sustained release dosage form.